

The nation of the United States of America was founded on the principles of protecting the natural rights of its citizens and to limit the power that collects to the government. Each generation must be taught the importance of guarding against those who would disregard the limits imposed on government and increase the powers not granted to the government. Today our state and the nation is in peril because we as a people have failed to maintain our vigilance. And we have failed to pass from one generation to another the knowledge and the lessons history provides that will prevent the rot from within our institutions. We must rebuild that civic involvement of our citizens so they may once again take pride and ownership in their own governance and not let politicians determine how to be governed.

There is a general feeling in the country that the people do not like what is going on in Washington and that The Congress and the President are unable to resolve their differences or govern the country based on the principles of the Constitution. The people we have elected to represent us generally are not doing what we elected them to do. They pass laws that nobody reads, understands or knows what the impact will be on the rest of us.

There must be a better way. And there is. Thomas Jefferson laid it out for all of us in his letters and writings after he left government. He firmly believed that our federal and state governments must be divided into wards and precincts. And the people in those small district make the rules by which they wish to be governed.

The Missouri Precinct or MOPP was started primarily to encourage citizens to become involved again in their local communities by

Running for Committeeman/women in their Townships and hold monthly meetings for the citizens in their Townships

Attending local meetings of their respective village/city hall councils and school board and fire district meetings

Talk to their friends and neighbors and church groups about the issues and get them involved

Walk their neighborhoods and precincts and encourage citizens to register to vote and vote in all elections

Work very hard to elect constitutional conservatives in the Primary elections
